

New HR Director keeps the focus on growth

7 October 2008

National law firm Piper Alderman recently welcomed Angela Martin as the new National Director of Human Resources.

Angela joins Piper Alderman following three successful years as the Director: People and Development for SA/NT at another major national law firm.

At Piper Alderman, Angela will be responsible for the overall management of people and recruitment strategies, which is a central element of the national growth of the firm.

Gordon Grieve, Piper Alderman managing partner commented on Angela's arrival:

"Growth is an important part of Piper Alderman's current strategy, as demonstrated by the recent merger in Brisbane with Lyons Solicitors. We understand that people are at the core of this strategy and Angela will be central to sustaining our national growth and retaining our talented team. She brings invaluable experience as an HR professional as well as in depth knowledge of the legal market."

Angela will be based in the Adelaide office, but will have a national focus.
